BLOKWERK
— from —
OREN SHERMAN

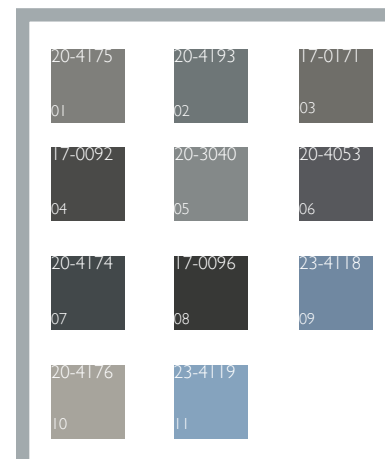

Immersed in the utopian ideologies of the De Stijl movement, BLOKWERK presents a range of carefully composed designs engineered specifically for the corridor. With flexible patterns in colorations ranging from cool neutrals to bold statements, BLOKWERK offers a multitude of ways to balance color and shape, manage scale and proportion, turn corners, and extend perspectives.

These designs have been engineered with extraordinarily long repeats, allowing designers to chart inventive pathways through corridors and transform often overlooked spaces into exciting opportunities.

Contemporary interiors are welcoming a more unified concept to corridor space, with carpet designs erasing the borders between door drops and transitions to preserve a continuous environment. Due to this conceptual shift in corridor design, end users are finding higher costs associated with generating more waste in attempt to maintain continuity of design. With simplified elements and harmonious textural compositions, the designs from BLOKWERK can be cut and reassembled in a variety of combinations while still preserving their structural integrity. With the ability to successfully serve traditional and atypical corridors, BLOKWERK delivers a practical solution to waste management while catering to the needs of the contemporary interior designer.
